Vanities

Bardiglio is quarried from a bedrock quarry in the Apennine Mountains near Carrara, Italy. It comes from the same quarry as Bianco Carrara and is often called Bardiglio Scuro, with "scuro" meaning "dark color" in Italian. Bardiglio will have a mix of light and dark grey tones within a slab, along with some areas of white. This marble will have sweeping veins and movement which will change on every shipment. Due to the qualities of the stone, the slabs are book-matched; meaning slab one and slab two will be cut and polished to create a mirror image of each other. These are then kept in sequence, which allows for a consistent flow in pattern. It is a common characteristic for this stone to have small pits in the raw material. Before the stone reaches the polishing stages, these pits are filled with polyester resin. Depending on how deep each pit is, the resin may shrink as it dries, which will leave the surface of the filled area slightly lower than the rest. This does not affect the durability, maintenance or beauty of the stone. During the winter months, most of the quarries are shut down for a period of time because of the harsh conditions of snow and ice. There will be noticeable variations in color and movement within slabs, between pieces and from block to block. Therefore, it is important to note that if slab and tile are being used together in a project, it is recommended to verify the colors prior to installation. Additionally, a range of this product should be viewed before finalizing a purchase. As a natural stone product, it is recommended that it be sealed to extend its longevity.
