Della Terra Quartz by Arizona Tile

Made from one of the hardest minerals on earth, quartz is one of the most durable countertop surfaces. This material combines all of the best qualities of man-made materials and natural stone. Because it's comprised of a mixture of quartz and resin, it boasts the ease of maintenance of a man-made product, while still having the natural look and edging options of natural stone slabs.

Arizona Tile recently introduced a new line of quartz products. The line is named Della Terra, meaning 'Of the Earth,' and boasts 38 beautiful colors. Each color is designed to emulate natural materials. Some of the materials the Della Terra line resembles are granite, marble, limestone, and even concrete. Della Terra consists of products that are smooth and polished, as well as a few colors that have an organic texture and matte finish.

Metropolis quartz from the Della Terra collection consists of 3 colors, and is gently textured giving it a leathered or satin look. These slabs can be used in spaces where either concrete or a leathered or satin slab would have been considered; giving the same look with limited maintenance. The Wave quartz from the Della Terra collection is comprised of four colors, and has a slightly heavier and more organic texture than the Metropolis line. The texture in the Wave quartz gives it a very organic quality.

Beauty and Durability are synonymous when it comes to Della Terra Quartz by Arizona Tile. All of the colors have the beauty of natural materials, and because the product is made up of over 90% quartz it is also highly durable. Because of its high quartz content, Della Terra quartz is highly resistant to scratching and chipping, and its density makes it highly resistant to staining.

Della Terra Quartz by Arizona Tile is an ideal product for any interior space. All of its characteristics make it the perfect selection for a high-traffic kitchen, as well as for a less utilized space like a guest bathroom vanity.
